Pertinent Topics Discussed by H.C.

There was a time when clergymen were calling for helpers. In some churches, at least, it is difficult to find places for all who have qualified, to preach the Gospel and some are advocating making it more difficult to enter the profession. Other professions have done this and trades that have by legislation blossomed into professions are following the example. Longer courses and stricter examinations are advocated by members who, when they were students, thought them long and strict enough. One clergyman deprecates the large number in the Ministry who allow their congregations to dwindle because they lack either pastoral or preaching ability or both. He recommends a Board that will inquire into fitness with power to reject applicants who lack such fitness.

The work of a minister is peculiarly arduous, more so than that of any other professional man. To be successful he must needs be a diplomat as well as a good preacher. His position is more difficult than it used to be. People today are perhaps not so critical as they were many years ago when they criticized freely enough but stayed in the church. Nowadays they do not criticize so much—they simply stop going to church. How this can be met and dealt with is the problem. There are clergymen just as there are lawyers and doctors, who pass the examinations, sometimes with flying colors, and yet do not fit in. They are apt or plodding students, but in the real practical work of their profession they lack that something which makes for success. How a Board of Examiners can weed out these at the outset we do not know. It seems a case where the determination must rest on trial and error.

Fascists and Reds had a battle in London lately. What we like most about the Fascists under Sir Oswald Mosely is that they fight the Reds and the only thing we like about the Reds is that they fight the Black Shirts. They both fight the police, but seek police protection. They both demand freedom of speech which they badly need, for speech is the only commodity they have to sell.

The notification received by Germans of military age as to their duty in the event of war tells them that the notification will serve as a pass on the railways to the station where they are to report. Now there's efficiency for you! Nothing is left to blind chance. Everything is prepared. You are told where to go, what to bring with you, and this Order is all that is needed for free transportation on the Cannon Ball Express. Old Blucher,

Interesting Information Taken from the Files of the Vulcan Advocate
Wednesday, October 28th, 1925

Over the week end of October 24th, 1925, threshing operations were again held up by a snowfall amounting to more than four inches. The weather was quite cold, the mercury staying just above the freezing point. 1925 grain prices—Wheat $1.10, oats 35 cts., barley 44 cts., rye 56 cts., flax $2.00.

A wet September was experienced in 1925, total precipitation for that month amounting to 4.42 inches, comprised of 2.18 ins. rain and 2.24 ins. snow.

The Nanton News of October 1925, reported that in conversation with several farmers of that district they made it known that they would not sell their land for less than $80.00 an acre.

The Catholic Women's League was organized in Vulcan in 1925 by Mrs. P. J. McCrohan of Calgary. Diocesan President of the League. Officers were elected as follows: President, Mrs. A. D. Mitchell; first vice-president, Mrs. L. H. Stack; second vice-president, Mrs. Albert Markert; secretary, Mrs. G. M. Whitcher, treasurer, Mrs. E. E. McIntosh.

Mrs. G. Monkman Returns From Trip To Old Country

On Sunday last Mr. Geo. Monkman motored to Calgary to meet Mrs. Monkman and daughter Kathleen, who have recently returned from a four months' trip to England.

This was Mrs. Monkman's first trip to the Old Country since she came to Canada as a war-bride seventeen years ago. While there, she visited with her father, brothers and sisters as well as with many friends. All the familiar places she knew as a girl she reported as "not much changed."

Mrs. Monkman also attended the unveiling of the Vimy Memorial in France and described it as the most beautiful sight she had ever seen.

The return trip was not without excitement. When the train was being made up at Kenora it was decided that it was too heavy and was divided into two sections. Mrs. Monkman happened to board the second section. When the train was a short distance out of Kenora the first section was wrecked, several trainmen losing their lives. The second section, which Mrs. Monkman was on, was only a short distance behind the wrecked train.

Mrs. Monkman assured the Advocate that, although she greatly enjoyed her trip she is glad to be home again.

Kirkcaldy News

A very enjoyable evening was spent at the home of Mrs. Henry Todd last Tuesday. Miss Gardiner and Miss McLean were dinner guests and later in the evening several invited guests arrived. Three tables of bridge were enjoyed and prizes were awarded to the gentleman and lady with the highest scores. At midnight a dainty lunch was served, bringing a most enjoyable evening to a close.

Field Crop Commission at Vulcan Stresses Need of Strict Conservation of Feed and Fodder at Meeting

Outlining the situation in detail with regard to the supply of feed this winter, and stressing the need of strict conservation of all potential supplies of feed, O. S. Longman, Field Crop Commissioner of the Department of Agriculture, Edmonton, who is in charge of Agricultural Relief in the province, discussed every phase of the problem with municipal officials in conference at Vulcan on Tuesday. He was accompanied by fieldmen of the Department of Agriculture who will supervise the distribution and look after the interests of the government. Mr. Longman was emphatic in his statement that the problem this year was a difficult one in view of the limited amount of feed available, and appealed for the co-operation of all municipal councils in seeing that the feed was issued on a fair basis and only to farmers who are in necessitous circumstances.

Over twenty-five officials from adjacent municipalities gathered at the office of the M.D. of Royal for the conference. Representatives were present from the municipalities of Little Bow, Harmony, Clifton, Marquis, Royal, Riley, Dinton and Clear Lake. Rev. Peter Dawson M.L.A., H. O. Haslam, K.C., M.L.A. and Rev. E. G. Hansell, M.P. were also present at the conference.

Mr. Longman outlined in detail the government policy with regard to agricultural relief. Policies now in operation were free freight on purchases of feed, free freight on cattle being sold to the packing houses under the cent-a-pound scheme, movement of stockers to the East, and free freight on cattle and sheep to points in the north for feeding.

It was pointed out that the policy of free freight on feed purchased outright by farmers who were able to finance themselves was extended only to those farmers who have not the means with which to pay the freight. In fact the whole policy of agricultural relief was only applicable to farmers who are unable to finance themselves in maintaining their stock through the winter. The only exception to this being the free freight extended on the shipment of cattle under the cent-a-pound plan.

A lengthy discussion was held with regard to the distribution of feed and the present set up for the financing and supervision of the same. It was

Lethbridge Herald Tops Circulation

For the first time in its history, the Lethbridge Herald has climbed over the 7000 mark and now has a circulation of 7,040. This is the official independent report of the Audit Bureau of Circulations, and is the statement for the year ending June 30, 1936. The Herald well deserves this satisfactory attainment. It is indefatigable in presenting a complete news service of the district, as well as the latest national and world news.

This increase in circulation is also noteworthy in face of the assertion, so frequently made, that the dailies which are not supporting the government have been losing in circulation. The Lethbridge Herald has not supported Social Credit, but it has given generous space to Social Credit activities and speeches. Editorial criticism has always been on some policy of consequence and has been presented fairly and fearlessly. Apparently a great reading public of Southern Alberta regards the Herald as an indispensable family paper. Although there must be times when many of the readers do not agree with viewpoints expressed, they evidently do appreciate the sincerity of the paper, and are sufficiently intelligent to respect the right of a paper to editorial opinion.

The provincial convention of I.O.D.E. passed a resolution that American text books or books with an American viewpoint should not be used in Alberta schools. The I.O.D.E. also turned down a proposal to affiliate with the Alberta Federation of Women.

There is a story concerning a clergyman, who, at a dinner, had to listen to a talkative young man who had much to say on Darwin. "I can't see," bawled the youth, "what difference it would make to me if my grandfather was an ape." "No," skinned the clergyman, "I can't see that it would. But it must have made a great difference to your grandmother."

CHARLES CLARK

Owner-Publisher

A UNITED FRONT

For some time there have been unpublished rumors of a union of forces in Alberta, to incorporate all who do not subscribe to the policies of the Social Credit government. This week D. M. Duggan has announced that definite steps will shortly be taken to launch a fusion movement.

As things stand at present there is no effective co-ordinated opposition to the Alberta government, and it is a truism that the best government results from a vigorous opposition. The Liberal and Conservative representation in the legislature was reduced to a skeleton force at the last election, and the U.P.A. wiped out. But under our system of election this gives no true picture of the actual voting population. There were approximately 163,000 people who voted for Social Credit at the election last year, but there were over 128,000 who voted against it. There is no tangible proof that the relation is greatly altered at the moment.

As matters stand there is no adequate representation of the 128,000 dissenters. Up to the present, the result has been a government supremacy that has been absolutely unimpeded in any action. This has given Premier Aberhart and his supporters full opportunity to inaugurate the Social Credit policies. Even the Dominion government has bowed—very wisely—to the demand "Hands off Alberta." The non-Social Crediters have done their part in accepting Prosperity certificates, and it is doubtful if ever a government was so completely equipped to implement pre-election promises.

But time marches on, and the next few months will be the testing time of Social Credit theories. If they succeed Premier Aberhart will be stronger than ever. If they fail, the people will look for leadership elsewhere, and from whence will it come.

Is there any phase of provincial politics which would make impossible a union of old parties and of independents under joint leadership, and under a name divorced from any of the old parties?

To those opposed to Social Credit, the paramount issue in Alberta is to restore the credit of the province and the individual, and to ensure liberties of speech and action which are threatened. There is not a hope of effective opposition, so long as the voters are split up into a dozen little factions, each weakening the other and losing sight altogether of the major objective. It seems to be a question of province or party.

RELIEF AT LAST

After the storm and fury regarding free freight relief, which has raged with increasing force in the last few weeks, there is quite a calm over the countryside. It would not be in the nature of things if the calm endured for long. But in the meantime, there is a much livelier recognition for this free freight concession than if it had been granted at the beginning of the season.

Whether all the protests and appeals with which the government was inundated had any influence, is something we are not likely to learn. There is the possibility that it was the intention of the governments all along, to grant the free freight concessions to those who could buy feed—but not until the canner cattle sales had been well launched.

There is obviously no intention of extending free freight for feed to any cattle which are not worth the wintering. It is said that a close check will be maintained to ensure that a $10 cow is not provided with $20 worth of hay, only to be sold in the spring for $10.00.

The federal government grant of $1,800,000 for drought relief in Alberta clarifies that angle of the feed question. There is also said to be a price set on the cost of hay and feed grain to the buyer. The sum granted by the federal government would be expected to include the one-third share in all freight moving, including cattle moved to feed lots and feed shipped in. It will also include a share in the movement of processed cattle, but it is understood that the government merely sponsors the cent-a-pound payment, prepared to reimburse the packing plants if loss is sustained. Later on will come the free feed which will be necessary to certain individuals and areas.

The drought areas extend only through a limited part of the province, so the federal allotment of $1,800,000 should go quite a distance in carrying over the better quality of milk cows and beef cattle. It is to be hoped that complete and understandable figures will be issued by the government.

Britain's Trouble In Far Palestine

Hostility Between Old Established
Arabs and New Jewish Immigration

Under the Versailles treaty, Great Britain was given the mandate for Palestine, and thus assumed responsibility for the government of that country which was predominantly Arab. By the Balfour declaration, the British pledged themselves to the creation in Palestine of a national home for the Jews of the world, who had been without a land of their own since Biblical times. Active steps were taken following the Balfour declaration by Jewish organizations throughout the world to encourage immigration into Palestine, and millions of money was invested in that country in building projects and farming development. A large influx of Jewish people into the country followed, and the persecution to which they were subjected in Germany and other countries aided this movement. While not normally a rural people in modern times, they have done excellently in many cases as farmers and have improved and increased the agricultural production of the country. The increasing number of Jewish immigrants has alarmed the Arabs and created in them marked hostility to their new neighbors. Disorders have broken out from time to time and several commissions have been sent out by the British government to try to settle the disputes. One of the chief difficulties these commissions have had to contend with is that there is no definite British policy regarding Jewish immigration into Palestine. What the British call the "absorptive capacity" of Palestine has been used as a base and no quantitative limits have ever been fixed. This refusal to set limits has encouraged some important Zionist elements to plan for a definitely Jewish Palestine, and in some cases for a Jewish Transjordan with a population variously estimated at between 3,000,000 and 10,000,000. This extremism tended to create an equal extremism among the Arabs and influenced even the most modest Arab elements to demand a temporary halt on Jewish immigration.

ment to show the amount of assistance rendered every municipality and the nature of the assistance. Such figures will make clear the expenditures on account of this year, and the distribution of expenditure.

THINGS TO COME

It seems that the main reaction from the recent moving picture "Things To Come," was active thankfulness that we are living in 1936, not in 1940, 1976 or even 2036. Another source of gratitude was that we are living in the country, in Alberta and in Canada, instead of on the Main Street of war's alarms.

It was a picture well worth seeing, because of the magnitude of production, and because of the contrast to life as we know it.

It was good to step out of the picture show into quiet country air, to know the security of home and familiar surroundings, free from the horrors that modern warfare must inevitably bring. One felt thankful for living in a spacious land, instead of in the clutter and throb of a city. And there must have been few who had any desire to share in the incredible marvels of 2036—even in the perfections of the underground city. A century from now is geared too high, in the way of mechanical perfections.

We do not want any part of the future, if the future is to be as forecast in "Things To Come." But that is not to say we can escape being involved if the fury of war breaks out. Neither the Atlantic nor the Pacific are sufficiently wide to assure us of security. Nations and men through their susceptibility to propaganda or short-sighted dreams of wealth and power, are permitting themselves to be led directly along the path of complete and ghastly human destruction. The picture left a sense of defeat and despair.

But it also made one deeply thankful for every day that may be snatched from such a holocaust. It brought our little frettings and flurries over inconsequential things into a better perspective. This is a good world for us in Alberta, in the here and now, despite drought and all our little personal worries. Let us make the most of the friendships and blessings of each moment, for the peace and freedom which we now know may not endure always.

STUDENT LIFE

The public will be interested to learn that "The Gateway," official publication of University of Alberta, has protested editorially against the prevailing "university life" stories as presented by picture producers. The Gateway concedes that the producers may be excused on the ground that probably nobody on the lot ever attended a university. But the depiction of varsity life is so distorted and unreal, as to create an unfair prejudice against universities. It is added moreover, that freshmen arrive at the halls of learning thinking they are entering a gay era of whoopee and hurrah, and it takes them some time to readjust themselves to the realities.

The students do well to voice their protest. Those in touch with the University of Alberta, and with other Canadian universities know that student life is a fairly grim and intensely serious business, with few of the light and carefree moments so gaily presented on the screen.

It is granted that a picture of student life as it is, would not be a very colorful production. Yards of film presenting hollow-eyed youths plugging away into the early hours of the morning, each in his solitary cell, would not be a box office attraction. The tension and tragedies of examinations would not be enlivening. The Christmas holidays overhanging with the fear of that stern faculty letter suggesting that further attendance would be a waste of time—these are some of the realities of student life which do not appear in pictures.

University life is a struggle for attainment, more demanding along more rigid lines, than the struggle in the big world outside. The splashes of gaiety are few and far between. There may be a few, even in a small university, who trip lightly along the path of learning, scattering roses and weaving garlands. But they are not representative, and as a rule they disappear ere long from the records.

It is little wonder that the earnest student feels that the current presentations of university life, create an impression false and prejudicial in the eyes of the general public.

WHY SO HARD UP?

"Some one has graded the prevarications of life as 'lies, damned lies and statistics.'" But in spite of this reflection cast upon the dependability of statistics, they can give some information. For example, the provincial government would do the public a service by explaining what has been done with the revenues received in recent months.

Surely nothing but extremity of need could send the provincial treasurer to the dominion government for money to meet loans, particularly after the peremptory "Hands off Alberta," earlier in the year. And, yet where has all the money gone, that has been accumulating at Edmonton? Liquor revenue, gas tax, the new tradesmen's licenses and sales tax, all the infinity of sources must represent a huge sum. Where has this money gone? There has been little spent on roadwork outside of prosperity certificates and no public works of consequence have been undertaken.

This is a time when a simple statement from the government of money received and money paid out, would be enlightening and welcome.

Weekly Sermonette

One of a series of sermonettes, on the sayings of our Lord, Jesus Christ.

"He that loveth his life shall lose it; and he that hateth his life in this world shall keep it unto life eternal."—John XII, 25.

Two Ways of Living

We have our choice, we may live for self, take good care of our lives, not exposing them to danger, not making sacrifices, looking out for our own interests, and we may prosper in the world; people will commend our prudence and congratulate us upon our success. We may reach old age hale and well-preserved and greatly enjoy our accumulated honors and possessions. This is one way of living. There seems to be something pleasant about such a life but really it is only the grain of wheat preserved in the garner and kept from falling unto the ground. The life abides alone, well enough kept per haps, but with no increase. It has no blessing in the world; it has done nothing for the glory of God; it has fed no hunger; it has won no reward. That is the whole outcome of selfishness—"He that loveth his life shall lose it."

The other way is to forget self; not to think of nor care for one's own life, but to throw it away in obedience to God and in unselfish service. People will say you are foolish thus to waste away your golden life; thus to sacrifice yourself for the sake of others or in Christ's cause. But was Christ foolish when He went to the Cross? Let the redeemed church be the answer. Were the martyrs foolish when they threw their lives away for Christ's sake? Ignatius said, when facing the fierce lions in the arena, "I am grain of God, let me be ground between the teeth of lions if I thus may become bread to feed God's people." Were such martyred lives wasted, thrown away? Is any life wasted that becomes seed-corn to produce bread by-and-by for the world? The way to make nothing of our lives is to be very careful of them. The way to make our lives eternal successes is to do with them just what Christ did with His.

R. J. C. Stead, Director of Publicity for the Department of Immigration and Colonization at Ottawa, told an audience he was addressing in Montreal that on a population basis, Canadians travel three times as much in the United States as Uncle Samites do in Canada, and that Canadian investments across the border are $115 per capita as compared with $33 per capita invested by our neighbors in this Dominion.

Pertinent Topics

(By H. C.)

Von Moltke, Von Roon, Hindenburg and Ludendorff couldn't beat that for preparedness. They were military geniuses, too, but the race is not extinct. The new Reich has men who are doing the thinking for the men who are to serve as cannon fodder, equal if not superior, to the above-named strategists. No wonder Hitler stands amazed to think that he who was only a corporal is chief among them all.

When we are asked to believe that all this perfection of preparedness is brought about by men who sincerely desire to remain at peace with their neighbors, it recalls the old story of the parson who had received a call to another parish at an increased stipend. His son at being asked by a curious or anxious parishioner if his father intended to accept it, said "Pa is still praying for light but all the things is packed." The manager of a professional pugilist would not give him such training and such definite last minute instructions unless he expected to arrange a battle. No farmer would invest heavily in a threshing machine unless he expected to do some threshing.

A Justice of the Appeal Court of Ontario, in a recent appeal against a judgment of Mr. Justice Rose gave an impassioned harangue dealing with the circumstances under which the legislation in question was passed, until he was restrained by a gentle reproof from a brother Justice that the Court was not trying the legislation or the Legislature that passed it but was endeavoring to interpret the Act. The passionate Judge had once been a prominent politician and a Minister of the Crown and probably forgot for the moment, as he often does, that he removed many years ago from that tumultuous sphere into the calm, serene atmosphere of the Bench.

A member of the Alberta government announces that owing to the drought the monthly social credit dividends may be only five or ten dollars to start with, and the complaint is heard that drought should mean an increase rather than a decrease. The announcement, however, indicates a recognition that payment of dividends depends on ability to pay. The original proposition based the dividends upon the "Cultural Heritage of Citizenship" which would make payment independent of drought, hail, grasshoppers or any other ills that crops are heir to. Indeed these afflictions would have justified bigger rather than smaller drafts upon the Heritage. It was something that had been accumulating for years and had never been tapped as a source of income, and this province had the distinction of essaying the first experiment in paying dividends from it. It is discouraging to be told now that that fountain was hit by the drought.

Ethiopians have been commanded to desist from wriggling on their stomachs as a sign of obeisance to their Italian conquerors. Viceroy Graziana tells them only slaves do that and that Italy desires them to have perfect consciousness of their dignity as men. Why, of course. It was so that they could feel their dignity as men that Italy beat them into submission. This business of wriggling on their stomachs when they meet their conquerors is so absurd. Having taken the count, why don't they stand up like men? Their grovelling only shows they are unworthy of the blessings of civilization that were given them at such an expenditure of shrapnel and bombs and gas. It is discouraging to find them so lacking in dignity after all that was done for them. "Wriggling on their stomachs." The dead showed more dignity than that.

President Wm. Green of the American Federation of Labor promises the bulk of the Labor vote to Roosevelt, and it looks as if he were able to deliver the goods, but it is rather risky for that element, or any other, to range itself officially with any political party. It sets up a reaction which may prove rather damaging in the future. The Republican party, though split, is still the largest political party. If not next month, it will yet be returned to power and is not likely to forget. Should it be returned next month it is sure not to forget, and some concessions Labor has gained in the past four years can be withdrawn in the general interest. Green is betting on the elections. If he loses, he should not object to paying the wager.

A Canadian reporter in Washington interviewed the Press Gallery there and writes that the correspondents are almost unanimously agreed that Roosevelt will be re-elected. Many of the men interviewed are reporters for Republican newspapers. In a recent visit we ran across only two persons who were going to vote Roosevelt. All the others were death against him, but

Mercury Secures Land Entry Rights

Judge Carpenter Allows Agricultural Value and Small Compensation for F. J. Hartell

Owners of surface rights in the Turner Valley area must not charge oil companies an unreasonable amount for the small acreage required by the oil companies to undertake drilling operations. Compensation should be based solely on land values and damages which may accrue to the property.

This, in effect, was the principle laid down by Judge A. A. Carpenter, chairman of the Board of Public Utility Commissioners, in a judgment handed down recently.

His honor found that Francis John Hartell, owner of surface rights on land in southern Turner Valley upon all agreed he was going to be returned. They argued that there were enough people on his payroll to ensure his re-election. If the Literary Digest's straw vote proves to be wrong it will be because it missed those who are living on the President's bounty and circulated only among taxpayers.

How delightful it is for men and brethren to dwell together in unity! Russia threatens to scrap its part in the Spanish non-intervention pact if the others won't play fair. France accuses Italy and Germany of financing the Spanish rebels. Italy shows its anti-British bias by accusing Britain of helping the Madrid government. Dio Grandi, the diplomat, strikes an unoffending table with his fist while charging Britain and France with lying. Amid all this noise and tumult, there are statesmen who predict that war will not come for some years. The only thing that we know positively is that there is one country in Europe that deserves a damned good licking.

When inclined to wonder whether patriotic and courageous public service is always rewarded, have in mind the case of Dr. McGibbon who died a few days ago. He was a disabled war veteran and was Conservative M.P. for Muskoka. Against many discouragements and much journalistic abuse he persisted in demanding investigation into the management of the C.N.R. and at last forced the administration to grant it. That investigation revealed that Sir Henry Thornton was drawing $149,000 a year in salaries and had been presented with a house in Montreal by the directors. It showed that many unnecessary officials were drawing unnecessarily large salaries ranging from $15,000 to $40,000 a year. It showed that the management was spending many millions in building hotels that would never pay, in golf courses and radio broadcasting stations, in banquets and other forms of entertainment, and that both railways were engaged in ruinous competition where co-operation and the elimination of duplication were clearly indicated by the revenues and the general conditions of trade. That investigation put a stop to the carnival and saved the country many millions of dollars, but cost Dr. McGibbon his seat. The public was not interested; railway men were. Dr. McGibbon was defeated while members who opposed him tooth and nail were re-elected. The people are not interested in saving. They are interested in spending, and that attitude persists not only here but in the United States.

Premier Aberhart declares he has not taken from those who have to give to those who have not. Some of his supporters are apt to think this an admission that he has not carried out his programme.

Lord Tweedsmuir admits with regret that he, a son of the manse, failed on three separate occasions in divinity examinations. Shoemakers' children, no doubt recall with regret too, how inadequately shod they were in their youth.

Consider Joseph Louis, Esq. He took a bad beating from Schmelling, but goes on fighting and scoring victories. Should he have another chance to fight the German, it would be unsafe to bet against him.

For some years past, in the hope of striking better weather, a day in October rather than November has been set aside for Thanksgiving. The chances are better of course, with this year, in many parts of the country the weather was Novemberish, where not Decemberish. Statesmen can see far into the future but not far enough to select good weather for Thanksgiving Day. Even that government department the Meteorological Bureau, cannot state definitely what the weather will be like three or four days later. Prophets spring up every now and then who claim to be able to do so for months in advance, but they make more errors than hits. There seems nothing for the government to do other than issue the proclamation and continue to trust in Providence.

which Mercury Oils Limited plans to drill, should not receive more than $175 compensation for seven acres of his land which would be rendered useless to him by virtue of Mercury drilling operations and $75 compensation for inconvenience occasioned the owner of the surface rights by the drilling operations on his land.

Judge Carpenter pointed out that the owner of surface rights does not control the mineral rights by virtue of his title. In this particular case, Mercury Oils Limited was the lessee of the oil and gas rights on land upon which Mr. Hartell held the surface rights. Right of entry on five acres of this land, for drilling purposes, was sought by Mercury Oils Limited. The company plans to drill on L.s.d. 8, section 5, township 19, range 2, west of the fifth meridian.

"In the board's opinion, while there will be some damage, it will not be nearly as serious as has been suggested by Mr. Hartell's counsel. However, because the board believes that some inconvenience will be caused to the owner, and some damage to his ranch through the severance of the land in question, it will allow, as compensation for such damage, and for compulsory taking, an additional sum of $75, so that the total amount of compensation will be $225."

Pay High Prices

Judge Carpenter said evidence indicated that many oil companies had, fairly recently, paid as high as $50 an acre for the surface rights to be used for drilling purposes. In one case $75 was paid where the proposed well would be in the midst of ranching operations.

"It is quite apparent that the prices mentioned have not been arrived at on any basis of land values," Judge Carpenter said.

"Some of the prices paid and particularly where compensation has been given in the form of a royalty on production, strongly suggest a bargaining not based on any land values or damages accrued, but on other factors, in regard to which there is no direct evidence. So far, however, as these prices establishing a value for the surface rights of land in this area taken, for drilling purposes are concerned, the board is satisfied that any such suggestion cannot be given consideration."

Judge Carpenter declared E. B. Nowers, land appraiser of long experience, had expressed the view that Mr. Hartell's land on the westerly ridge of the southern part of Turner Valley was not worth more than $5 an acre and was only fit for pasturage and not even good for that.

S. J. Helman, K.C., of the firm of Helman and Mahaffy, acted for Mercury Oils Limited, the successful applicant for right of entry, and J. D. Whetham and F. L. Burnet, K.C., acted for F. J. Hartell, owner of the surface rights.—Calgary Herald.

Husbands had to do The Housework—

DOES Friend Husband use the quill pen of the nineties, make his journeys with a horse and buggy, work with out-of-date tools or use his brain for an adding machine? He does not! He uses up-to-the-minute labor-saving, time-saving and money-saving devices.

Put Friend Husband doing housework and what would happen? The bugbears of household drudgery would vanish in quick time. There would be more Electric Ranges, Refrigerators, Vacuum Cleaners, Washing Machines, Ironers, Floor Polishers, and smaller appliances installed in a few months than in all time past.

Friend Husband wouldn't worry about the increase in his electricity bill either! He would know that the savings in labor and time would more than pay for the cost of electricity used.

You'll find it to your own advantage to take hints from the business methods of your husband, to help you in the management of your home!

pointed out that all advances for feed would be made under the terms of the Agricultural Relief Advances Act passed in March 1936. Under the provisions of this Act, the municipalities are required to make a survey of the requirements and pass a by-law setting forth the amount of money to be set aside for the purchase and distribution of feed. Practically every municipal council represented at the conference informed the Commissioner that this had been done, and were waiting instructions from the Department setting forth in detail the regulations to be followed. Mr. Longman explained that delay had been caused due to the fact that the Province had been conferring with the Federal authorities in the arranging drought areas and completing plans. Arrangements had now been completed and the necessary application forms are being forwarded to the municipalities. It is anticipated that the actual distribution will commence in the very near future.

Reeve Bennett of the M.D. of Royal pointed out the need of immediate feed relief to farmers who have a small amount of milk cows upon which they depended for a livelihood. Municipal bodies were being censured in some cases for the delay in getting the plan under way. Mr. Longman was sympathetic to the needs of the small farmers and assured every possible effort to deal promptly with the applications.

Applications would be accepted by the Municipal Authorities and approval of the council as well as the agricultural field men was necessary before the application could be dealt with. Applications for feed will be required to give the necessary crop and land liens to secure the advances, and a limited supply only will be available to each farmer.

The general tone of the meeting was one of co-operation with the government on many valuable suggestions and instructions were given to the councillors. At the conclusion of the meeting, Mr. Sam Brown, Reeve of the M. D. of Dinton who is president of the Foothills-Little Bow Municipal Districts Association, thanked Mr. Longman for his assistance and guidance in the handling of agricultural relief.

Getting Behind in His Correspondence

Premier Aberhart Has Not Replied to Protest of Weekly Newspapers

It looks as if Premier Aberhart is neglecting his correspondence, judging from the unanswered letters which are piling up. For one thing he has not replied to the letter from the Alberta Weekly Newspapers' Association requesting him to refrain from unjust attacks, or else to take action against the papers which he accuses of telling lies.

So H. T. Halliwell, president of the Weekly Newspapers in Alberta, has written a second letter to the Premier, in which he says:

"On October 10, a copy of a resolution was forwarded to you from the annual convention of the Alberta Division of the Canadian Weekly Newspapers' Association, urging you to take action against newspapers which you accused of telling lies in connection with your policies.

"So far no acknowledgment has been received of this resolution, but instead you continue your misrepresentations over the radio against all newspapers, when the way is open to you to effect a remedy, without inflaming public opinion in an unjustifiable manner against newspaper-publishers, who, on the whole, are as keenly interested in good government as all other citizens.

Opportunity Missed

"An opportunity presented itself for you to meet the publishers when they recently met in Calgary, both by invitation fully a month ahead of their meeting, and again during the convention, when you were staying in the Palliser Hotel on October 9-10. That this opportunity was not taken advantage of, certainly is not the fault of the publishers.

"Your attacks on the press as a whole are grossly inconsistent with the facts, for the great majority of weekly newspapers have given fair and accurate news reports of all Social Credit activities, have maintained the dignity of the office of premier, and have extended the same courtesies to your party as to other political parties. They maintain they have the right to express their editorial opinions just as freely as your opinions are expressed over the radio, and the columns of all newspapers have been open to those who wish to write letters to the press, both Social Crediters and those opposed to your theories.

"I trust you will either refrain from your continued misrepresentation of the press, or take definite action against those newspapers which you claim are 'telling lies'.

(Signed) "Yours very truly,
H. T. HALLIWELL, president,
Alberta Division, Canadian Weekly
Newspapers' Association."

Scotland From Gaing' Tae the Kirk

Not even what an Associated Press dispatch calls "wet weather and a piercing cold win," can keep him away. Or, at any rate, it didn't last Sunday when the little minister of the tiny church at Craithie, Balmoral, preached to a congregation that in numbers resembled the eager crowds in Edinburgh in the sixteenth century that defied worse than weather to applaud stern John Knox as he wrathfully and roundly scolded Mary Queen of Scots. The gathering on Sunday around the Craithie church was so great that the local police were quite flustered trying to untangle a seven mile traffic jam.

King Edward was there, too.—

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

Editor, Vulcan Advocate,

Dear Sir:

I think the ruthless hunting of partidge as it is carried on in our district is shameful and unsportsmanlike. I don't know if it is lawful to shoot the birds from a running car as is being practiced. Yesterday a car with two men on the fenders was driving around a quarter section for hours in a systematic and speedy way of shooting. It was a heavy day, with wet snow falling and the birds had little chance to get away. Others have been driving on the roads in the same way.

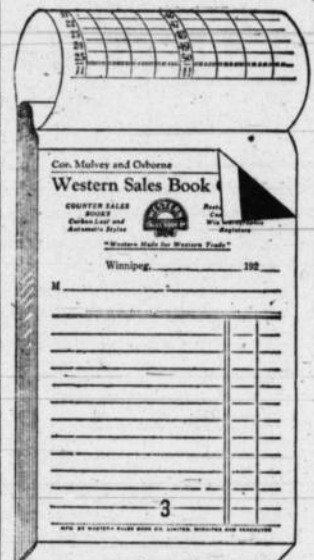

If we all should get out and hunt partidge on every quarter section in such a manner, we would exterminate every bird in a day. To me, it seems unhuman and unmanly, and because of it I have posted signs on my land against shooting, in order to give the birds some protection. Every winter we feed them among the trees and it is a pleasure to see them enjoying themselves, playing like little children in the morning. Every year we have a nest or two in the garden; they are not afraid, but come up to the house and barn, until some fellows come and shoot them.

I think it is fine sport, hunting them in a sportsmanlike way. If it is lawful to shoot them from a speeding car we should see that the law is amended. If it is unlawful, it should be stopped at once by the proper authorities. I think we have too many sportsmen in our district who are interested in this sport to allow it to be abused.

Morning Rarin' to Go

The liver should pour out two pounds of bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You get constipated. Harmful poisons go into the body, and you feel sour, sunk and the world looks punk. A mere bowel movement doesn't always get at the cause. You need something that works on the liver as well. It takes those good, old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up". Harmless and gentle, they make the bile flow freely. They do the work of calomel but have no calomel or mercury in them. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name! Stubbornly refuse anything else. See.
